FIND WRECKAGE OF MISSING AIR LINER

Three Occupants of Plane Dead; Crashed in Blinding Snowstorm.

By The Associated Press

BURBANK, Calif., Nov. 20.—Three bodies and a pile of wreckage, found yesterday in the Teahupoo foothills north of here, today revealed the fate of a northbound Pacific Coast air mail plane, caught in storm and fog early Tuesday.

Flavius A. Donaldson, veteran pilot, who served in the army air corps during the World war, was at the controls Monday night when the plane left here for Oakland. With him were George Rogers, mechanic, and Miss Jean Markow, who was celebrating her eighteenth birthday with a flight to Portland, Ore., to visit friends. The ship carried 319 pounds of mail. Radio messages sent by Donaldson to the transport base here chronicled the flight until 2:07 a. m. Tuesday. At that time, after a fight with winds, snow and fog, he reported he could gain no more than 9,000 feet above the highest peaks there, and was circling helplessly over Tejon, where a small emergency landing field lay hidden by snow or fog. For 40 hours to fate of the craft was unknown. Then Eddie M. Newson, cowboy, stumbled upon the broken mass. The bodies of the girl and the mechanic were found near the spot where the plane first struck. Donaldson's body was encased in the twisted metal of the plane which had plowed to a halt 500 feet away on the gently sloping plateau. Avarice found indications that he possibly had formed on the wings of the plane, forcing it to earth.

"Little Princess" of City Hospital Rules No More

The little princess of City hospital is dead. Gretchen Stohrel, the appealing little girl who made so many friends in Marion City hospital, died yesterday morning at St. Luke's hospital in Cleveland.

GRETCHEN STOHREL

Her hundreds of friends here know what pain the child suffered with her little hands and legs swollen by arthritis. She was taken ill in Cleveland some time ago, and it seemed for a time that the terrific temperature of 104 degrees would burn up her little body.

Gretchen was taken from City hospital, where she had spent two years, to St. Luke's in Cleveland the Friday before Easter of this year. She was kept at the hospital for four weeks under observation, and then taken to the convalescent home. Here she remained until Sept. 17. Back to the hospital she went for treatment of an added illness and later returned to the convalescent home.

Tuesday night, when it became evident that the little girl was in an extremely critical condition, she was again taken to St. Luke's, where she died at 6:30 Wednesday morning.

Gretchen's life, except for two years in City hospital here, was barren of love or affection or kindness.

At the hospital she learned to laugh, to rule hearts and to make herself an indispensable part of the institution. Her little upholstered rocking chair was always in the lobby. It was thought St. Luke's hospital could find the root of the cause of her disease, and amid tears and kisses she left Marion and all the friends she had made both at the hospital and at the Crippled Children's school where she was beginning to make such an encouraging advance in her lessons.

While she was in Cleveland, Gretchen's parents visited her only once. They moved from Marion to Cleveland.

SCORE KILLED IN TORNADOES

Many Are Injured, Hundreds Homeless in Wake of High Winds.

REBUILDING PLANS MADE

Construction Program Started Immediately; Red Cross Active.

By The Associated Press

Tornadoes which swept through Oklahoma, Arkansas and Kansas communities yesterday exacted a toll of 20 lives, injured scores, left many homeless and caused property damage estimated at nearly $1,000,000.

At least 10 persons were killed and 47 injured seriously by the tornado which demolished more than 100 houses at Bethany, a Nazarene settlement seven miles west of Oklahoma City.

Four were killed at Camel Creek school about four miles south of Bethany where the tornado first struck. The teacher and 10 pupils were injured and the school house demolished.

City Official Hurt

D. D. Powell, city recorder of Okla. Ark., was killed and his wife seriously injured in a tornado which razed half the business buildings in that town of nearly 1,000 inhabitants.

Sixteen children and a teacher were injured by a tornado which demolished a rural school building near Victoria, Kas. Twenty buildings were demolished and a man seriously injured at Neal, Kans.

Rehabilitation occupied the attention of Bethany citizens today. A committee of insurance brokers, contractors and building and loan executives already was formulating plans to rebuild the eastern part of the town, the population of which was approximately 2,000.

Appeals by Governor O. J. Holloway and the American Red Cross for $30,000 with which to carry on the work of rehabilitation were met promptly by donations more than $18,000, with many other subscriptions to be tabulated.

Builders Offer Help

R. E. Mattison, Jr., member of the relief committee and vice president of the Oklahoma Contractors' association, said contractors would volunteer to rebuild the homes as soon as money for the materials alone was forthcoming, without considering profits.

Homeless persons were being cared for by half a dozen relief organizations and friends. A canteen was established by the Salvation Army, and cots were set up in vacant buildings for those who could not find shelter elsewhere.

National Guardsmen patrolled the storm swept area to prevent looting and keep the crowds of curious away.

W.C.T.U. Adopts Slogan for Dry Enforcement

By The Associated Press
HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 20.—The fifty-sixth annual convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union which closed last night adopted the organization with a new slogan and renewed political platform.

The slogan, announced by Mrs. Ella A. Boole, re-elected president, was "obedience and enforcement—not repeal." The renewed pledge was support for dry political candidates only. It was coupled with a demand of political parties that they nominate only drys.

PRESIDENT SPEAKS TO WELFARE GROUP

Hoover Pleads for Safeguards to Health of Nation's Children.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—"If we could have but one generation of properly born, trained, educated and healthy children, a thousand other problems of government would vanish."

These are the words of President Hoover, ringing today in the ears of the delegates to the White House conference on child health and protection as they settled to translating his appeal for American childhood into a national welfare program.

The president, last night in opening the conference, asked for safeguards and services to childhood beyond the reach of the individual parent, which can be provided only by the community, the state or the nation.

Often whimsical in his approach to the complicated child problem on which he set 1,200 experts working more than a year ago, President Hoover brought smiles to his audience, even while he impressed them with the seriousness of their task.

"Our country has a vast majority of competent mothers. I am not so sure of the majority of competent fathers," he said. "But what we are concerned with are things beyond her power."

"Much learning and much attention," was the president's prescription for these complicated problems, which he characterized as questions which should stir a nation.

Secretary Wilbur, conference chairman, promised that no series of resolutions, but a program "direct, simple and interesting" would result from the sessions.

LOAN AGENT ARRESTED

New Ideas

(Will Rogers Special)

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 20.—The unemployment situation is lightening up. Bobby Jones is going to work. Bobby has some queer ideas. He thinks that getting money takes away your amateur standing.

Then Californians, to help relieve unemployment, have decided as their contribution to charity to take on nine more congressmen.

Mayor Thompson of Chicago has got the most original idea to help the unemployed. He wants to sell 10,000,000 lottery tickets at 25 cents apiece, and the one that draws the lucky number gets to eat.

PAIR CHARGED WITH MURDER

Oregon Capitalist and Former Secretary Accused in Wife's Death.

VICTIM OF KNIFE THRUST

Arrests Made on Basis of Alleged False Statements of Physician.

By The Associated Press
PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 20.—Nelson C. Bowles, 32, retired capitalist, and Mrs. Irma Loucks Paris, 28, his former secretary, were arrested here today, and charged with the murder of Bowles' wife, Mrs. Leone Bowles, 33, society matron.

Mrs. Bowles died Nov. 12 in Mrs. Paris' apartment. A knife had been plunged into her breast. Mrs. Paris and Bowles, who were in the apartment at the time, told police Mrs. Bowles had stabbed herself.

Mrs. Paris and Bowles were arrested on order of District Attorney Stanley Myers, who said all officers connected with the investigation agreed the evidence warranted the action.

Myers said an admission by Dr. Paul D. Cooper, who was called to attend Mrs. Bowles, that he "was false in a highly material matter in his original statement," was the culminating cause for the murder charges against Mrs. Paris and Bowles.

Dr. Cooper's alleged false statement was understood to concern the exact time Mrs. Bowles died. Police said Dr. Cooper had told them Mrs. Bowles was not dead when he called an ambulance. Authorities asserted last night Dr. Cooper admitted Mrs. Bowles had been dead about 20 minutes when he called the ambulance in which the body was removed to a private mortuary.

Police also said Dr. Cooper did not notify them or the coroner of the tragedy. He was later arrested and charged with removing the body without the coroner's permission.

GROVER SNYDER MAY GET STATE HIGHWAY POST

Marion Man One of Five Probable Successors to Robert N. Waid.

BOULAY ALSO MENTIONED

All Others Are Former Division Engineers in Vic Donahy Administration.

Grover C. Snyder of 131 Silver street, former division highway engineer, today was mentioned in Columbus as one of the five probable candidates for the post of state highway director in the new cabinet of Governor-elect George White. The position commands an annual salary of $6,500.

Snyder has been active in Democratic circles in the Eighth district and during the recent campaign was secretary of the Marion county Democratic executive committee.

The Marion man served for two years as chief engineer of maintenance in the state highway department under Governor Vic Donahy, prior to which time he was engineer of the sixth division, which embraces Marion, Morrow, Union, Delaware, Madison, Franklin, Pickaway and Fayette counties.

L. A. Boulay of Toledo, former state highway commissioner, is one of the other four probable candidates. The others are O. W. Merrill of Marietta, T. S. Brundage of Ashland and Fred W. Swineford of Akron, all former engineers in their respective state highway divisions.

Before he became associated with the state highway department as division engineer under Boulay, Snyder was deputy surveyor of Marion county under Leslie K. Warner and W. L. Weston. He also served as deputy surveyor of Wyandot county.

At present Snyder is half owner of the Upper Snyder Construction Co., a contracting firm with which he became associated when the Cooper administration assumed power.

Before he became associated in highway work, Snyder was division engineer of the Pennsylvania railroad, with offices at Fort Wayne, Ind., and at Upper Sandusky.

Governor White's selection for the position will take effect on Jan. 12, immediately after White is sworn in as governor. The new man will succeed Robert N. Waid, Republican.

RETIRED RICHWOOD MAIL CARRIER TO MISS FRIENDS ON OLD ROUTE 2

RICHWOOD, Nov. 20.—For 24 years he had driven over this route. But this was to be his last trip and the route formed through more than a quarter of a century of service for his government was going to be hard to break.

DAVID NEAL

Today David Neal no longer is seen on the route of his automobile mail carrier for many years carried the mail to farmers on route two. After 24 years of service he has been retired from an agency of service for his government.

As he looks back on his time in the mail, Neal continues to linger on the route of his friends and the route of his life. He has a friend of every farmer on his route. Many of them he watched grow from childhood in childhood. With sorrow he saw many names change on boxes as the years passed to their final resting place.

Although passed out of the postal service last month on account of his age—he is 69—Neal still is a good physical condition. He plans to continue living in Richwood where he owns his home but has made no other plans for the future. However, much of his time will be spent in dreaming of those days gone by with the thought...

These lines of his parting poem brought thoughts of that treasured letter from Postmaster General Walter F. Brown commending him in his "loyal and efficient service."

DURING his years of service, Neal covered an average of 8,400 miles each year. At the start his route was 24 miles long and was covered with a horse and buggy. Then came good roads and the automobile and his route was lengthened to 31 miles.

Neal is a friend of every farmer on his route. Many of them he watched grow from childhood in childhood. With sorrow he saw many names change on boxes as the years passed to their final resting place.

Although passed out of the postal service last month on account of his age—he is 69—Neal still is a good physical condition. There has been a great change in funeral customs since the days of our grandfathers.

Many of the practices decreed by customs at that time were needlessly cruel to the bereaved relatives and friends. The modern funeral director tries in every way to emphasize the mood of hopefulness, rather than that of gloom. This lightens the burden of the living without detracting from the proper reverence for those who have passed on.

"THE CAT CREEPS"
TO SHOW AT PALACE
FRIDAY, SATURDAYHelen Twelveteeths Has Lead in New Version of Mystery Play.

BY HALLIE HOUCK

WILLIAM, the old mystery play, has been revived again at the Palace. The play, which has been brought to the Palace Friday and Saturday with Helen Twelveteeths in the lead, is a notable one.

While the play is a mystery, it is not a mystery play. That is the question that has been asked. The play is a mystery play, but it is not a mystery play. The play is a mystery play, but it is not a mystery play. The play is a mystery play, but it is not a mystery play.

Helen Twelveteeths, last seen in Marion was in "Her Man" at the Palace several weeks ago. Mrs. Twelveteeths, according to Hollywood stories, is trying to get down her present agent, a Mr. and Mrs. Lillian.

Just the evening before the play, the director at the Ohio Friday and Saturday. After Jimmy comes from the "Spine" in a wild way. Jimmy is a 35-pound Black Cat.

Stubborn Coughs
Ended by Recipe,
Mixed at Home

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up a stubborn, lingering cough. It takes but a moment to prepare and costs little, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that follow severe cold epidemics.

From any drug store, get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe and heal the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germy mucus and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of distressing coughs, chest colds, and bronchial trouble.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

MARION REVERSES
LINE OF OLD POEMLupe Velez Is Brilliant Star in Picture of Orient.

"O H, east is east and west is west, and never the twain shall meet,"
run the lines of a famous poem, but the two do meet in
"East Is West" Carl Laemmle Universal picture which will be shown for the final time tonight at the Marion.

Lupe Velez, the brilliant Mexican star, has her first singing role in the film as Ming Toy, the Chinese girl who is offered for sale on a Chinese "love boat." To save her from a wretched fate an American played by Lewis Ayres, of "All Quiet on the Western Front" fame, purchases her through an Oriental friend.

Ming Toy subsequently is brought to San Francisco, where to save her from Chinatown, half sister Charlie Young, played by Ed ward Robinson, Ayres takes her to dresser again and goes with his wife and their children, leaving her

to find her first wife and her family.

that arise. It is an adult show.

A Parisian widow, happily remarried, is notified to see in her new husband a man who is her former husband's double. A doctor restores the husband's memory and the man is the husband believed killed five years ago in a railroad accident. No one wants to tell him that his wife has remarried, and has a small son.
Finally a woman appears on the scene and announces that the man is her husband and the father of her four children. After many love tangles, he and the doctor agree that it will be best for him to return to his halcyon personality.
He pretends to become the hair-dresser again and goes with his

wife and their children, leaving her
to find her first wife and her

Instant death to germs of disease!

Think of it!—a non-poisonous mouth wash absolutely harmless, pleasant to taste, healing to tissues, yet with power to destroy germs by the millions.

Such is Listerine, for fifty years the outstanding antiseptic and germicide for oral hygiene.

It is a type of dangerous germs swiftly succumb to it. Among them are the Streptococcus Hemolyticus, the organism associated with sore throat, Micrococcus Catarrhalis (catarrh) found in the mouth with colds, and the Pneumococcus pneumoniae.

Enemy of infection

From Staphylococcus Aureus (pus) and Bacillus (dysentery), germs specified for test purposes because of their resistance to germicides, Listerine kills them in counts ranging from 100,000 in 15 seconds (fastest killing time recorded).

Now you can understand why full strength Listerine is so successful in guarding against sore throat, and other infections. Why it combats these diseases once they have gained a foothold.

LISTERINE
safe • non-poisonous

Reduces mouth germs 98%

The moment Listerine enters the mouth it attacks the millions of bacteria breeding there—kills them outright. The number of bacteria on the surfaces of the mucous membrane is actually reduced 98%. This has been clearly demonstrated by repeated tests made under methods employed at great Universities.

Gargle every 2 hours

Make a habit of using full strength Listerine as a mouth wash and gargle every night and morning. This treatment under normal conditions of health is considered sufficient to keep mouth germs under control and maintain a clean and healthy condition in the oral tract.

When, however, you have a cold or sore throat consult your doctor and increase the frequency of the gargle to once every two hours.

Thus you give nature an extra attacking force needed when body resistance is low, to keep disease germs under control. Lambert Pharmaceutical Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

Child Health and Protection.

Many people have remarked on President Hoover's early manner with children. Different, shy and often seemingly ill at ease with adults, the President is at his best when in the company of very young people.

It is fitting that attention be given this attitude of Mr. Hoover on the occasion of the White House conference on child health and protection, which opened Wednesday, although it did not get into full swing till today. It is fitting too, that the conference, conceived and inaugurated by Mr. Hoover, should be made to reflect most creditably on him as President of the United States. To us a phrase which occurs frequently in his writings, a conference on child health and protection is "in the large sense" easily more important than anything considered during the nineteen months of his administration. "If we should have but one generation of properly born, trained, educated and healthy children," Mr. Hoover said in addressing the conference Wednesday night, "a thousand other problems of government would vanish."

The White House conference is the greatest single attempt ever made to produce a summation of all the knowledge and experience pertinent to the study of child welfare problems. More than 1,200 highly-trained scientists, teachers, psychologists and physicians have been at work for more than a year collecting and arranging material, which is being offered in report form and considered by the conference. Posterity will be given the advantage, thus, of a series of conclusions and judgments, the benefits of which will be felt for decades. This future benefit is but one of the claims which the President makes for the conference and one is sure, considering the uniqueness of the project, that he does not claim too much.

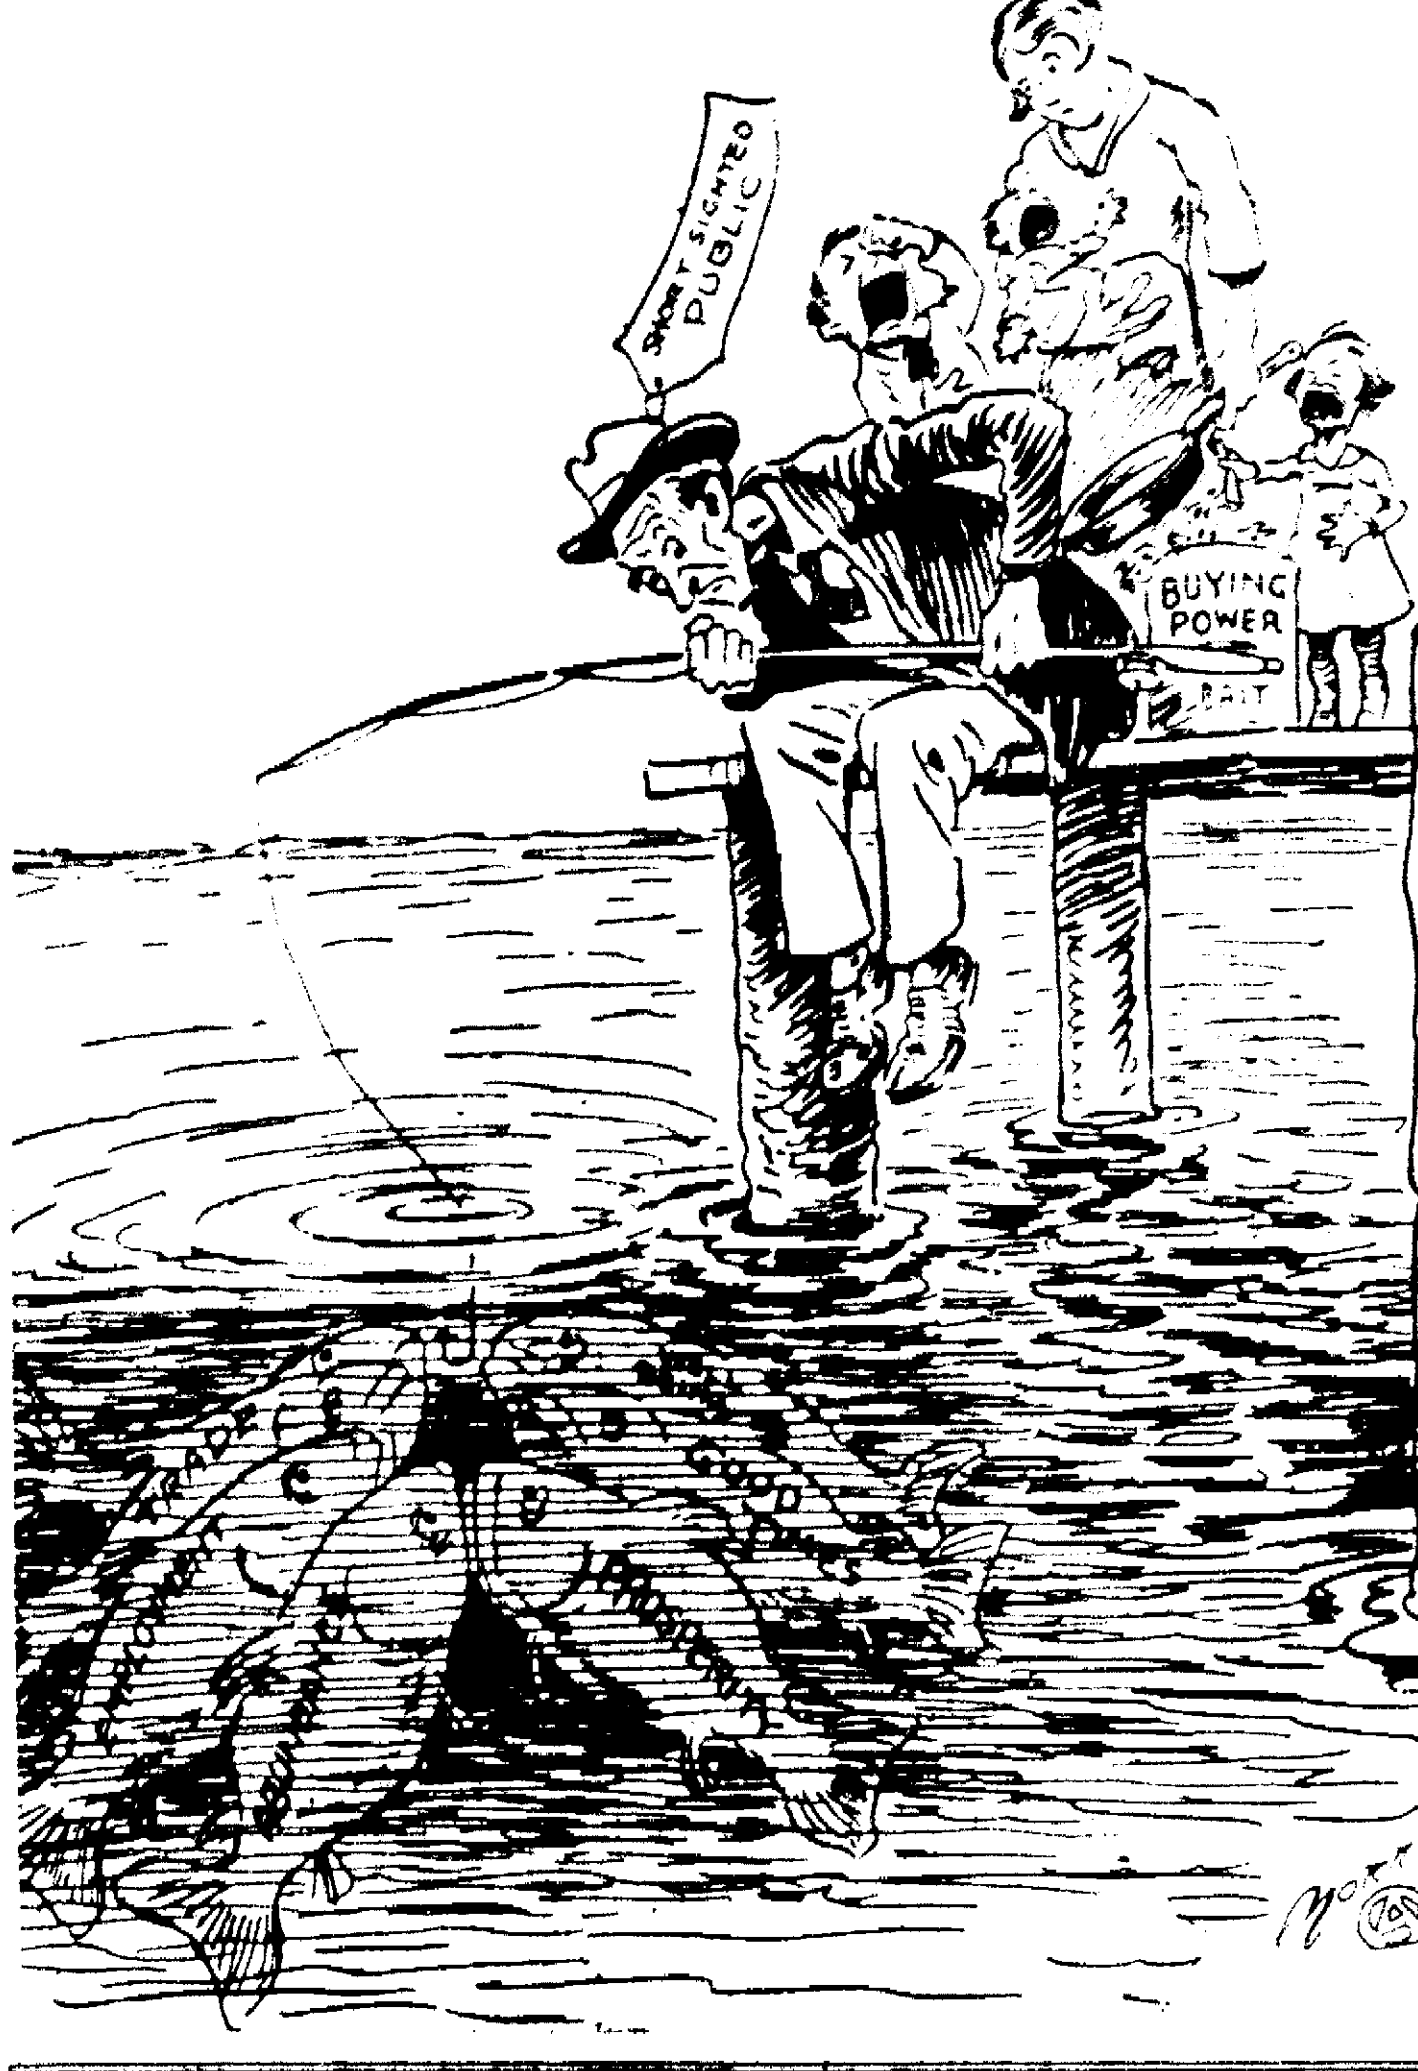

It is chiefly Mr. Hoover's confidence in the men who are leading the conference that prompts him to forego its results and to describe them so glowingly. Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior, university president and physician, is its far-seeing chairman. In a special article published in the New York Times last Sunday, Dr. Wilbur disclosed the attitude which qualifies him for leadership. His particular plea for childhood is that education be directed to boys and girls, not subjects; his most urgent admonition is against mass living for children. One phase of his article is quoted for its special significance:

"In these days we attempt to herd all our children under sixteen into the school rooms for a considerable number of hours each day for a considerable number of months, using their eyes and their brains in a certain way. We have made them and many of our adults sedentary in their habits, when for thousands and tens of thousands of years our development has largely been made through our capacity to move around, to be in the open air and to do hard physical work."

Dr. Wilbur proceeds, then, to answer the question: "How can we give the children back their birthright?" A trend away from mass living and individualized education, as stated above, are his answers.

The White House conference on child health and protection is the kind of undertaking that optimists turn to as evidence for the soundness of their philosophy. Even if it achieve but a tenth of its aims it will be, possibly, the outstanding achievement of President Hoover's first term. It is a huge national investment in the soundest possible bonds—those of childhood. Intelligent investment of a powerful nation's vast resources in such unquestionable securities truly could produce a super-nation in a few generations.

CAN'T EXPECT TO CATCH FISH WITHOUT BAITING THE HOOK.

Editorial Opinion.

THE LAWYER AND THE LAW.

The laws of this country are written by lawyers, are pleaded by lawyers in court and are interpreted by judges who are lawyers. Consequently the members of the legal profession are the law's special custodians. They are also sworn officers of the courts in which they practice. When they permit the law to be defiled in the temple of justice it is too much to expect laymen to hold it in the esteem to which it is entitled.

Some such thought as this must have inspired Mr. Emory H. Buckner's plain talk to a gathering of the Detroit Bar association last week. A former United States district attorney for southern New York, as well as a former special assistant attorney general for the investigation and prosecution of officials in New York City, Mr. Buckner has had ample opportunity to familiarize himself with the subject on which he spoke. "A lawyer who knowingly takes a case and defends a guilty man," he said, "is lending himself to perjury."

A good many lawyers in this country do that very thing. Some go further and deliberately manufacture perjury. Some are regularly retained by criminals. Some have been caught dividing loot. The number of lawyers who do these things is relatively small; but they are the criminal's ablest allies and society's most dangerous enemies. They prostitute their position at the bar, which they received on the solemn understanding that they would uphold the law, to make a dirty living by defiling the law and leaving such men as Jack Diamond and any number of similar predators at large to prey upon society.

The remedy is in the hands of the disciplinary committees of the bar associations. There is where the fight to restore the law to respect in this country will be won or lost. As long as criminals can hire lawyers morally no better than themselves to protect them from the law they are not going to fear the law—and until they fear it they will not cease to hold it in contempt.—Detroit Free Press.

EMPHASIS MISPLACED.

Editor Star: The money that was raised and given to promote the marathon dance, the flag pole sitting and the auto marathon, if it had been given to the community chest, or the needy of our city, would have called out the hearty commendation of all Marion county. But commendation has been omitted by force of necessity and condemnation is given because of such foolish misplacing of emphasis on non-plus, non-essential things, which do not add to athletic virtue, strengthen the intellectual man or contribute to moral integrity.

The hundreds of unemployed, the army of shelterless men, the great number of hungry people, many almost to the point of starvation, with winter coming on, simply make the mistake all the greater.

Such unwise adventures for a flicker of fame, and an added paltry dollar to certain private coffers, at the expense of public morals and our city's good name, naturally bring a just criticism on every side from people not only at home, but from far away.

It will take much earnest effort on the part of a sincere citizenship, which is truly interested in a greater and better Marion, to lift us out of the quagmires of these unhappy circumstances, and change the unfavorable sentiment created against us, because of these demoralizing agencies in our midst, while conscience and courage, seemingly asleep, stood by with folded arms.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Nov. 29.—It always pays to keep your eyes open, while waiting for the streets of the capital to be captured by the world, big game of official life are often visible.

One of the biggest to be had with no difficulty is a new and different one.

There's Herbert Hoover, for example. Want a close-up of him? Perfectly simple. Take a street walk in the main, almost any pleasant Sunday afternoon, when it is known that he is not working at the fishing camp on the Rapidan.

More than likely he will pause beside you to watch a baseball game being played by the amateurs on one of the many diamond tracks. Watch him walk again through motor traffic, unrecognized except by those who spot the two well-known men in his heels, so courtously members of the White House secret service.

It is the President's way of getting the kinks out of his legs—these fine Sunday afternoon walks.

Or go out to the avenue in the vicinity of Rock Creek park. Wait around until some time after 7 o'clock in the morning. It's a safe bet that you will see a burly, erect figure in an old business suit, wrinkled leather puttees, shapely cloth cap, swinging a bit of twig for a riding crop, come into sight.

It's Borah of Idaho, off for his daily ride.

Stuck around a while longer, and you'll see another ride by a beautiful and spirited mount by the name of "Lumberjack." That's Senator Odell of Nevada, off for a tour of his favorite little paths in the park on the horse his wife gave him last Christmas.

Or come down Connecticut avenue within the vicinity of Dupont circle on Sunday afternoon and the chances are you will meet Vice President Charles Curtis face to face. He likes to walk in that neighborhood.

Around 8 o'clock any morning, go down Connecticut to the hotel, club and shopping zone at K street. A very Beau Brummel of a clubman will pass you. You'll know his military carriage instantly. It will be General John J. Pershing.

Go out Sixteenth street, at the crest of the hill near Meridian park. Hang around for a few moments early some morning, a scholarly, dignified man emerge from the doors of the French embassy and make his way down the hill to a little stone church a few blocks away. That's Ambassador Claudel going to mass at St. Paul's—a daily activity.

Or if you choose, take your stand on Massachusetts avenue some morning around 6 o'clock about two blocks below Scott circle. Andrew Mellon, secretary of the treasury, will appear soon walking to his office.

Fall in behind and catch step with him. The kinks will leave your legs if you try to keep up with him all the way downtown.

Do You Miss Traffic Lights?

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Many factors go to regulate the color sense. It takes a trained eye to distinguish between the various gradations of the primary colors. The artist possesses a vivid color sense, because the eye is trained to fine distinctions. Workers in dyes and those who engage in such professions as interior decoration and other forms of art, must have a highly developed sense of color.

One who can not distinguish between different colors is said to be "color-blind." Perhaps most of us are more or less color-blind, certainly when it comes to distinguishing between the many shades of many colors. Most persons can distinguish only a few of the many hues found in the universe. Men particularly are more or less afflicted with color-blindness. Something which will be of general interest is the recent report from the Technical College of Berlin. It states that Professor Franz Weidert has invented a glass to be used in spectacles for the color-blind. The glass contains certain chemical elements which aid in detecting colors by those who suffer from lack of the normal color sense.

Certain colors of the spectrum are taken from the light rays passing through this glass. The colors which are absorbed are chiefly those which range in tones from orange to yellow, lying between the reds and the greens. The spectacles make it possible to distinguish between colors by increasing materially the contrast between them.

To the color-blind red and green are the two most troublesome colors. Thus a glass such as this would seem to be a valuable contribution to many afflicted persons. With such an aid to motorists afflicted with poor color sense there will be little excuse for them to disobey the red and green signal lights and the flashes of the traffic cop.

Persons who are in posts of responsibility anywhere on land or sea should have frequent tests of the eyes, both for failure of vision and for color-blindness. Many an accident can be averted by this precaution.

A Rapidly Moving Regiment.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

The Sixty-Eighth Ohio Infantry, organized for service in the civil war in the northwestern part of the state, moved so fast after it got into actual service that a beautiful banner secured for it by the citizens of Henry county was not presented to it until the date of its mustering out. It was at once returned to the donors in whose possession the banner rested at last accounts. There was no feeling in the matter, but the regimental colors inscribed with the names of the many battles engaged in had already been deposited with the adjutant general in Columbus and the new ones seemed superfluous.

The regiment was organized at Camp Leavenworth, near Napoleon, in November, 1861, and remained in camp there until early in the following year, when it moved to Camp Chase and soon thereafter to the front. Samuel H. Seidman was the first colonel, but he was replaced with it only to July, 1862, and Colonel Robert H. Scott was in command in most of the engagements.

The Sixty-Eighth was on the list of every seceded state except Florida and Texas, and traveled, during its long service, 6,000 miles by water and rail, and marched 100 miles. It was in the war until the end and took part in the grand review in Washington at the close. Then it was sent to Louisville, where muster rolls were signed for discharge, but the organization had to report to Cleveland for payment.

On its arrival there the citizens of Cleveland, on July 14, 1865, gave the veteran regiment a breakfast and served both officers and men in public square. Four days later payments for services were made and the regiment ceased to exist.

The names of the battles against the seceded states, Ft. Donelson, Fort Mifflin, Forts Henry, Corinth, Vicksburg, Chattanooga, the Landing, Raymond, Jackson, Vicksburg, Big Bend, Gettysburg, Newbern, Atlanta, Jonesboro, Lee's Ferry, Okefenokee, Savannah, Fort Fisher, and Columbus, Orangeburg, Columbia, Cherwell, Bentonville and Raleigh.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTYRE.

New York, Nov. 29.—New York has a number of insurance salesmen who have taken to do a combined business of making a sale. Haven't you seen an apostle of insurance? Not perhaps in the same manner as the Northwest Mounted but as effective as they get their man.

One is George Coxey, who specializes in angling for writers, cartoonists and figures in the sporting world. He angles for newsworthy news through a free press clipping bureau. He reads the papers and indexes articles and sends an especial list of prospects.

Coxey rarely makes a personal or telephone call. Instead, from time to time he mails a clipping or a batch of clippings to the editor of his list. He merely inquires if they have seen the printed matter and expresses a hope they are enjoying life. A policy is never secured.

Yet when those favored think of the man, they naturally think of Coxey and of his approach. He is a dead-end salesman. A clipping from an obscure paper in the Orient and Tex Rickard resulted in the contact which won a huge policy to the fight promoter.

Perhaps the most successful of all is the effacing—Vash Young. He is from San Francisco—and a descendant of Brigham Young—and seems to make the selling of life insurance a mere side issue to the business of helping the other fellow. Most of his time is spent befriending the friends yet he is some of the biggest policies in New York.

Another hustler is Elmer G. Leterman, who has an office in Times square and a large following among theatrical and movie people. A few years ago he was a poorly-paid city policeman with no particular ambition. Today he is one of the well-to-do men about town and a famous first night.

His closest friend is A. E. Lefcourt, the famous builder who began life as a newsboy on Broadway and reached maturity before he could read and write. It was Lefcourt who wisely advised Leterman the way to make important money was to have a business of his own.

No dusky dame has yet succeeded in taking the place of the septa comedienne, Florence Mills. Adelaide Hall has personality and charm and so has Ethel Waters, but Florence Mills with those limpid clear eyes so inconspicuously remote, seems a wistful sprite coming but not to a generation.

Some different names in the morning mail. Ted Sauter, Janice Vroom, Ogdenhorpe Star, Edam St. John, Cecile Q. Norstrom and Sam Rubinfeld.

In creek bottoms of my little town were shantytowns we called "swamp angels." A faded, pock-marked and bow-legged "swamp angel" bore the poetical name of Algernon McGregor Delisle, a lesser Victorian whose job was carting away slop to hogs.

There is the spirit of the 1930 "servant maid" about the waiter of a Fifth avenue club who dismissed, retorted: "I belong to a better class than this myself."

The swan song of a little Seventh avenue cafe is caroled in a card on its closed entrance. "Our customers do not want food any more. They only want liquor."

More horological horror. A desk clock that went completely haywire several months ago suddenly began loudly to tick today. The desk had not been joggled or the clock touched. It is all right, but if any doors begin mysteriously to open, up goes a sign: "Flat for rent cheap" and the first stop will likely be Pittsburgh.

And in a little eavesdropping today, I know, pretending to adjust a picture on the crack in the door, I heard a writing man tell his wife writers should be left completely alone for two months a year. "Leave them flat," she counseled, and was so convincing I spent the rest of the day tip-toeing around, as have been only out of the coop once for a little air.

"Did you ever think of writing as a career?" asks a letter from a writing colleague. "I had a whack at it, but gave it up for this.—Copyright, 1930, McNaught Syndicate, Inc."

Solar Radiation.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

One of the results of modern physical theory, dealing with matter, energy and radiation, is the belief in temperatures in the universe far beyond anything imagined before.

These figures are arrived at, not by guesswork, but by mathematical calculation on the basis of the new conceptions of the constitution and character of the atom. The theories of the atom are many and puzzling, succeeding each other with dazzling rapidity. We now have a column headed "The Atom of the Month." And the latest theory, put forward by Dirac, is pronounced entirely unintelligible to the layman!

It is difficult to gain any satisfactory conception of the temperatures. We can imagine that a glowing mass of white-hot molten metal is so many degrees hotter than a block of ice, say. But can we imagine something that is much hotter than white-hot molten metal as this is hotter than the block of ice? On the Bohr theory of the atom and the Einstein theory, Eddington has estimated that the temperature of the surface of the sun is 6,000 degrees Centigrade, and that as we penetrate the solar depths, the temperature finally attaining the staggering figure of 1,000,000 degrees Centigrade at the sun's center.

The electrons within solar matter are expected to come into violent collision with each other inside of solar matter. This is analogous to the collisions which take place between the molecules of a gas. The enormous temperatures considered by Eddington could only be attained by the actual disruption of atomic systems. Within the atom is the central proton, around which revolve the electron-planets. Tremendous heat comes about as the result of the actual stripping of the atom, tearing away the electrons from their central suns and for the moment actually disrupting matter itself.

The enormous energy released takes the form of solar radiation. This radiation is a consequent reduction in the mass of the sun.

As Jeans picturesquely puts it: "The sun's weight has been reduced by 1,000,000,000 tons in the last four minutes with the result that its gravitational grip on the earth has been weakened and the earth has moved out to a wider orbit, at this moment the radius of the earth's orbit is greater than it was four minutes ago. The details can be traced out mathematically with complete precision. It appears that the earth's orbit around the sun is not a circle, or even an ellipse of small eccentricity. It is a spiral curve, like an uncoiled watch spring. Every year the earth moves a step farther out into the outer cold and darkness; exact calculations show that its average distance from the sun increases at a rate of about a meter—39.37 inches—a centimeter.

It must be remembered, of course, that this is the picture of exactly what is happening, and if the theory on which it is based is correct, it is scarcely to be doubted, however, that the sun is steadily losing mass, although at a rate susceptible of mathematical exactness.

Nor does any physicist or reputable popularizer doubt that matter and energy are constantly being transmuted into energy in some form.—Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

By the Associated Press
Einstein's own work is far more important than his understanding of the street, yet Albert Einstein is a man who is interested in the issues that concern the average voter.

The distinguished physicist, who has revolutionized the theory of relativity, is not only interested in the issues that concern the average voter, but also in the fall's wave of election in Germany as a result of the Reichstag election.

During the election period Einstein is passing through a grave illness, and an alarming drop in his employment, he said.

When the voters are called to the polls, Einstein is sure anybody can understand the results of the Reichstag election.

Einstein is an unusually good artist. Critics say that he might have made his way quite as easily with the violin as with trigonometric formulae.

JENNY... eminent creator of Paris fashions says:

"The sheerest lingerie is safe if laundered with Palmolive Beads"

Agreeing with the Committee of 17... Jenny and 32 famous French designers declare Palmolive Beads "Ideal for washing fine fabrics"

JENNY! The name calls up visions of garments of chic and elegance.

Mme. Jenny has the rare distinction of having been awarded the ribbon of the Legion d'Honneur, in recognition of her "eminent services" in the creation and inspiration of a French art.

Her name ranks among the real leaders of the great French dressmaking houses. In her workrooms are silks and chiffons worth thousands of dollars. Lingerie—fine as sheer veiling! Laces of incomparable beauty.

You may be sure Jenny has given the most serious attention to the care of these exquisite garments... and especially to their proper cleansing. She says:

"Lingerie safe if washed with Palmolive Beads"

"Coarse, harsh soaps—scalding hot water—bits of soap left after washing—all these are fatal risks for delicate fabrics.

"But the sheerest lingerie is safe if laundered with Palmolive Beads. They dissolve completely in lukewarm or cool water, and leave no soap to dry in the fabric and rot or break the threads.

"I recommend Palmolive Beads for washing even the finest lingerie and sheerest fabrics."

So different from other soaps said David. "But if you start accepting invitations to farewell parties you'll be here all summer. It's a choice between parties and me."

"I'll choose you," answered Fanny happily.

On the last day David left the house at 11 p.m., going to get his lunch downtown. He was scarcely out of sight when Florence Kil-rich walked in.

"Go and dress yourself," she ordered. "I'm going to take you out to the Country Club for lunch."

"Oh, Florence, what an angel you are to want me but I can't possibly."

"What?" Everything's packed.
"I know, but I have to go after lunch for Sheila. There isn't a thing left for her lunch. Anyway I couldn't leave her."

Mrs. Collins is on her way now to stay with Sheila. I might as well confess that I hustled around and got up a surprise party for you this morning. Everyone there—Fanny weakened. All she could find in the box for Sheila's surprise was a bowl of canned clam chowder left from the day before. There was no ice but the chowder smelled right enough.

About 4 o'clock, when Fanny got back to the cottage, she found it empty of all but Mrs. Collins. Regretful to be the mouthpiece of bad news.

Sheila had suddenly become ill around 2 o'clock, she said. Fortunately Mrs. Collins had the presence of mind to telephone Mrs.
Frost, who had taken Sheila home with her.

"She's awful sick," said Mrs. Collins. "I never seen a person turn so green."

Fanny ran the half mile to her mother-in-law's. Doctor Burnett was there and a trained nurse, Sheila in a dreadful lassitude lay in the center of her grandmother's great four-poster bed moaning a little but not opening her eyes when Fanny spoke her name.

Fanny on her knees beside the bed began to sob hysterically.
David had been from the room. Mrs.
Frost followed.

"You must pull yourself together," commanded David quietly. "Remember, you may be needed."

"Fanny asked Mrs. Frost abruptly, "what did you give Sheila to eat?"

Fanny was still tottering on the borderland of hysteria. She honestly could not remember for a moment what Sheila had eaten.

"I don't know," she faltered between sobs "bread and milk. I think."

"Are you certain about that?"
Fanny remembered then about the clam chowder. It was the bow-der that had poisoned Sheila.

Dumb with horror, Fanny crouched in her chair, her head bent over David's hand. When David and she were alone she would confess to him the awfulness of what she had done David would understand. But his mother must not know. If his mother found out she would take Sheila away from her, convince David she was not worthy to be trusted again with her baby.

Mrs. Frost was inexorable.
"Are you certain you gave her nothing but bread and milk?"
"Yes," Fanny half whispered.
"Then how about this?"

In Mrs. Frost's hand was a cracked bowl with bits of tell-tale chowder clinging to its sides.

Fanny knew then that she had walked into the trap that her mother-in-law had set for her.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

By JUDG M. LEWIS

THURSDAY Someway I got to thinking about the dead cat over by the cistern in the vacant lot last night, and I felt awful sorry for it. I guess it was because I was so near dead from smoking my grandfather's pipe, so I was sorry for all dead things. I bet I would of been all right if I had only smoked it enough to light but I smoked it too long.

When I had lit Jubilee down and had went down and done my work and come in to see what they had for breakfast, my mother said I must be as empty as a vacuum house because I didn't eat a supper last night and I was hungry. But she had found lots of eggs and when I had had so many hot cakes and eggs and butter and drunk a glass of milk, that I was full up to my neck, she brought me a quarter of a pumpkin pie and told me I could have all of it. So I ate it all. I have got a good mother. Peenie and Younis and Maggie came, and my grandfather told me to run and hide her pajamers, and Maggie got red, and Younis wouldn't look at me. She ought to have let my ants pajamers alone.

We all went down to the dam to see if the pond was froze any more. It was a little bit, but not much. There was a big thick door to the icehouse that used to be there and burnt down a year or two ago, and I thought if we could get it to the pond it would make a good raft. So we all went after it and we dug our toes in and lifted and pushed and dug it up over the dam and pushed it in the pond. Peenie said that was the brutes thing we ever done, and she stepped out on it and jumped up and down and waltzed around and the first thing we knew it began to float out. We tried to reach it but we couldn't, and then it got near the water gate and she leant over and got her hands on that and tried to pull the raft in so she could step to the dam, but it kept drifting out and she kept stretching as far as she could and humping herself up to keep out of the water, and then her stummick bent lower and lower, and then it touched the water and she gave a scream and let go and I got hold of one of her hands and pulled her out, and she looked like a drowned rat, and she clamb up the hill and went.

We stopped at my house on the way to school she was there wearing my ant's pajamers and her clothes was hung all around the beam burner. I bet she didn't dare go home. She looked crows-eyed at me and said I should of wrang her out before I let her go. Girls aren't so very little. We skam out. But she got to school in time.

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

By ADELL GARRISON

"Managing" This Harrison Boy Not Such a Difficult Task

LOOKED in astonishment at Dicky's nephew Henry as he said explosively that I didn't do any such thing when Dicky had complained that I had piled a lot of boxes on the "Star of Bethlehem," the most necessary part of the Christmas tree lights. Henry's face was red and my mother-in-law would have used the homely old simile of the angry turkey cock if she had seen him. His state of mind was plain. He was furiously angry at his uncle for his accusation and had rushed to my defense with awkward but genuine boyish chivalry.

I could not hear a grateful prideful little feeling at the boy's warm championship. Henry was the greatest problem of the three boys and the least appealing. I was greatly conscious that I had liked Roderick and William much better than I had this trying boy who had been into mischief of one sort or another ever since he had come to the farmhouse. I had not dreamed that he had any particular liking for me either. But no one could help reading real affection in the boy's eyes as he faced his uncle.

Dicky congratulated Mudge.

How would Dicky react to the boy's criticism of him? He is never petty, this Peter Pan of mine, but his temper is set upon a hair trigger and he never is more irritable than when he is engaged in any particular piece of work, such as the arrangement of the Christmas tree lights. I quaked as he stared at the boy for a second or two after his explosive denial of the accusation. Dicky had made it.

Then I saw amusem nt creep into his eyes and looking past the boy he glanced at me amiably.

"Congratulations!" he said, and I knew that he meant more than a girl's kiss. I reasoned with me that I probably could "manage" Henry, and I had him away from me at the Christmas and mental rule of the house to have collected. I had formed the attachment for which his championship ship of me all indicated.

"Probably," I thought. Had he said something about the boy. And it's not long that I got to stick up for your Aunt Mudge. She's about the best friend you'll find out tomorrow.

I had my finger on my lips, telling that Dicky, irresponsible, glibly would drop some more direct part of the surprise we had prepared for the four boys. And Dicky winked at me for answer, while Henry's eyes opened wide and William looked at us as if trying to piece together an intricate picture puzzle.

Mary's Own Mother

"Had I up that Star of Bethlehem thing, Bill. Dicky directed, wisely diverting their attention. "And Hank stand over here and hold this cord this way while I try to get a connection, too. If you have any more boxes of Christmas trimmings—Mudge would better get em down. These lights ought to be ready in a few minutes."

"There are some more," I told him, "and we're getting them down behind." And I waved toward Noel and Mary, who had just come in with arms piled high with the light and awkward boxes of fragile trimmings. I had not dared to entrust the transportation to the boys. There would be individual trimmings smashed, I knew, from long experience in trimming trees, but if the boxes were once safely deposited in the living room there would be little danger of wholesale smashing such as dropped boxes would involve.

About three more trips we got to Aunt Marge. Mary called. "When is the trimmings going to begin?"

"Not until Junior and Roderick are safely upstairs with Aunt Kate. I told her. And I've promised them an extra hour this evening. Father's reading them the Christmas Carol. Then we'll sing the carols a few of them which Junior knows. Roderick does it, doesn't he, Mary?"

"I don't think so. Mary said and I wondered if I might find the state of bitterness in her voice. Mary thought she didn't strike a hard and true note.

I had a sudden vision of these children with her queer ideas of child psychology and her indulgent half cruel treatment of her daughter and her three sons and the tragedy of her heart. Not the tragedy of the children's being motherless but that of their not having tender and beautiful memories of her.

Well, we can soon teach him. I can cheerfully, and I'm sure he'll like them as well as Junior does. Now I'll open these boxes and arrange them in the order of their value on these various tables. Then they'll be handy when you start trimming, and yet this won't be displayed where the youngsters can see them."

It was a good ten minutes later when the lights had decided to be "have themselves," and Dicky had napped them all on giving a grunt of approval and strapped them all off again that he asked abruptly, "Agent Lili and Harry and Marion coming over to sing carols with Junior?"

There was silence in his voice, and I realized that he was as childish as Junior could have been in his resentment that our old friends should be spending Christmas Eve with the Bixtons.

Distinctive but not Expensive

Of Course... you can serve it hot

Most people want a hot breakfast dish for a cold day. Shredded Wheat is deliciously warming when eaten with hot milk. Crisp the biscuits in the oven and pour hot milk over them. The savory shreds retain enough crispness to encourage thorough chewing—that's one reason it's so good for children. Delicious for any meal with fresh or stewed fruits.
